

"We need to attract journalists to this case."

At the opening ceremony of the 7th Global Forum of the UN Alliance of Civilizations in Baku, the participants were shown a video of the United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon.

Oxu.Az reports with reference to APA that the Secretary General began his message by thanking President Ilham Aliyev in connection with the activities of the organization.

Ban Ki-moon noted that the idea of the Forum is living together in an inclusive society.

"Since xenophobia, racism is a serious problem everyone should be created conditions for a decent life. For this reason, I fully support the idea of the Forum. The following month, the event dedicated to the humanitarian crisis will be held in Istanbul."

I urge you to support this event. Many people forced to leave their homes. We should try to eliminate the causes of conflict. The UN General Assembly is determined to put an end to the violence," Ban Ki-moon said.

The Secretary General stressed the importance of enhancing trust and understanding around the world.

"We need to attract journalists to this case," Ban Ki-moon said.
